Preface

India boasts on the roots of "Guru Shishya Paramapara" since its ancient history. Education in those days was focused on passing knowledge "Dnyan" to the "Shishya" by "Guru". It was well supported by the principals of Gurukul Premises. In fact, India has the first international university in the name of Nalanda "Vishwavidyalaya". During those days Indian education was solely based on art and cultural. Accordingly society had various artists and groups of skilled people. Professional Technical education was started at the time when British ruled India, when East India Company first started Gun carriage factory in Guindy. Since, then till date we are following education system inherited from British India.

Currently Indian education system is the third largest in the world with 399 state universities, 126 deemed to be universities, 48 central universities & 334 private universities (UGC). Gross enrolment in higher education is around 25.8% which is less as compared to the other developed countries. Most of the outcomes from the universities following traditional teaching learning practices are not as per global standards. As per Yashpal, Rao "Knowledge commission reports", most of the institutions in India focus on rote learning; where the focus is on "remember and reproduce". It's commented that curricular practices; Teaching, learning & education do not focus on skill development. Especially, in higher education it's now needed that the education focuses on professional skill such as Design, problem solving, Teamwork & communication skill. It's also needed that our education must be tuned with current Industrial requirements i.e. revolution "Industry 4.0", and should be able to address the problems of society. Also, Government of India has started schemes like "Start-up India" and "Make in India". Thus, unless and until we create a systematic change in the educational philosophy & practices, achieving quality higher education, global ranking and success of Government schemes seems to be a difficult goal to achieve. We believe that a "Project Based Learning Approach" could make it possible. In the Project based learning, curriculum development process is based on the current problems. Thus, students receive latest and authentic knowledge required to solve the problem. Students in PBL environment learn problem solving and design skills during the process of problem solving. Thus it promotes novel product development cycle which is essential for strengthening start up India & the make in India. However PBL is not rooted in Indian Education system. Surprisingly none of the universities are practising PBL to its fullest possible extent. This may be because institutes don't have human resources which can practice PBL effectively. Also, there is a lack of understanding in PBL philosophy; for example most of educators think doing projects is PBL; in fact it is not. Thus, focus of this proposal is to

- Training Educators on PBL philosophy and practice.
- Develop different PBL models suitable for Indian education system.
- Research impact on newly developed PBL models and practice.
- To decide future change strategies to create sustainability in PBL pedagogy.
- To create regional Centre of Excellence in Project Based Learning.

We at Vishwaniketan firmly believe that education has no boundaries. The best possible learning experience provided to the student helps them transform themselves into ideal global citizens. Vishwaniketan believes not only in this philosophy but has also taken major positive steps towards achieving this goal by implementing international programs. CTIF Global Capsule (www.ctifglobalcapsule.com) after making phenomenal global contribution in IPR based research, product development; has paved way for promoting transformation in Indian engineering education through project-based learning (PBL). The educational practice followed at Vishwaniketan is the blend of traditional as well as Project Based Learning (PBL). Such a practice is an excellent example not only to the institutes which are affiliated to any of the universities but to institutes who are also looking to adapt the necessary changes to tune up with the current needs of engineering education. Project based learning philosophy has been welcomed by many Indian institutes which focus on learning through projects. The fundamental idea is to develop professionally trained human resource for India by involving them in complex problem solving and technology development process.

I hope this programme appeals you and an educational objective within, we invite you to extend your cooperation for this programme.

About PBL-COE

I Dr. Vikas V Shinde, on behalf of entire PBLCOE team wholeheartedly welcome and invite you to read further.

In the backdrop of the situation discussed in the preface, in year 2009-10, I got an opportunity to pursue my PhD at Aalborg University (AU), Denmark UNESCO Chair in PBL; which is a pioneer institute to implement PBL since 1972. My, PhD was fully sponsored by European Union's Erasmus Mundus Mobility for Life grant. There, I got an excellent opportunity to study closely Aalborg PBL model. The reason to pursue PhD in PBL is to start the change process to shift from traditional teaching-learning practice to PBL practice. Initially the thought was to design PBL model for India but I soon realised that Indian Education system is too complex, that one model cannot serve the purpose. Thus, PBL models which can be implemented by any Indian Institutes are developed and its impact is assessed. In the years, 2014, I was awarded PhD in PBL, at that time, I was the first PhD in India to receive PhD from UNESCO chair in PBL, Aalborg University Denmark.

Then, I continued my experiments with PBL and carried out my passion by creating training programmes and modules for teachers and students. In view of strengthening our PBL activities, we created PBL- Centre of Excellence. I currently work as Director PBL COE and lead team of PBL practitioners and trainers.

Role of PBLCOE in Vishwaniketan is to design and coordinate PBL models practice in the institute. Our role is to make sure that our educational experience is at par with global needs of engineering education. We work with various stakeholders to make sure that our educational model is in tune with changing needs of engineering education. Our thoughtfully designed PBL practice is well accepted by students and parents. In a short span of time, we have become a reason to inspire institutes to become PBL institutes. PBL approach is a wonderful educational strategy to build the profile of the students, teachers and Institute.

Thus, we invite you to become one of the few institutes in India to embrace and practice PBL.

Project Based Learning: What and Why?

Project Based Learning is also popularly known as Problem based learning, initially originated in the McMaster University Canada (1968), in Roskilde (1972) and Aalborg University (1974) Denmark. The PBL model focuses on challenging students to solve open ended problems, which are pre-selected to align with learning objectives of the program. Such problem solving requires considerable self-learning of the students to reach to the problem solution thus making learning student centred. Students can direct their learning and learn through experience which they gain while solving problems. Students' learning is also augmented by traditional teaching and supporting infrastructure like group rooms, smart classrooms, library and well equipped laboratories to support problem solving. Since, the PBL problems are challenging enough to the individuals, thus the group of 4-5 students are asked to work together to solve problem. This leads to peer to peer learning. It is proven that PBL leads to deep learning and enhanced performance level in the traditional as well as project examinations. PBL also leads to improved skill levels of students leading to better employability.

In ViMEET, the essential characteristics explained above are adapted to suit Indian educational environment. The staff members of various departments here are trained for the development of PBL models. Also, themes like Industry based Value Addition Programmes, Under-graduate fellowship programmes; industry-institute interface model and ViMEET incubation centre are practiced in line with PBL principles. Students are also prepared for evaluation and supported for their academics and placements. This ViMEET PBL models is implemented by many institutes in India and supported by 16 international universities across the globe. Thus, students are getting exceptional exposure to groom them for global market place. This model works well for affiliated colleges; autonomous or private universities can rip many more advantages of PBL from the fact that they have authority to frame their curriculum. This additional advantage for such institutes/universities can lead to preparation of classical University level PBL models such as Aalborg University, Denmark, Coventry University, UK or Purdue University, USA. Indian universities and autonomous institutes can compete with their global counterparts and place them in the world ranking with the aid of PBL.

In the Project based learning, curriculum development process is based on the current problems. Thus, students receive latest and authentic knowledge required to solve the problem. Students in PBL environment learn problem solving and design skills during the process the process of problem solving. Thus, it promotes novel technology and product development which is essentially need for strengthening start up India & the make in India.

Capacity Development Process for staff and Students

It is important to note that PBL practice has origin in Europe, whose culture is different than Indian culture. Also, PBL is not rooted in Indian Education system. Surprisingly none of the universities is practising PBL to its fullest possible extent. This may be because institutes don't have human resources which can practice PBL effectively. Also, there is a lack of understanding in PBL philosophy; for example most of educators think doing projects is PBL; in fact it is not. Thus, there is a need to for Training Educators on PBL philosophy and practice. Such training will create awareness among staff about PBL practice. Once the staffs are trained on PBL philosophy they can develop different PBL models suitable for their Institute based on its educational culture. Thus, PBL philosophy will remain same however practice is customised to suit the local culture.

After models being developed, its necessary to implement PBL in the institute, this is a PBL practice and teachers who implements is a PBL practitioner. During and after implementation it is essential to see the impact of PBL on students learning and skills, thus research on impact of PBL is initiated. We call this as PBL research and the teacher who conducts is a PBL researcher. Thus, research gives an opportunity to reflect what worked and what did not. Also, the PBL models and practice gets refined every cycle.

Once sufficient PBL Practice and research is being done, we believe that Institute can sustain PBL practice by themselves. From our past, experience we have learned that PBL practice and research in two consecutive cycles can establish a culture, however sustaining that culture becomes an issue. To overcome this, we identify teachers who have implemented and researched PBL in right manner with right attitude; we identify them as PBL trainers. These identified trainers then continue to guide and sustain PBL practice in the institute.

It's the students, who are the most important beneficiary of the PBL practice, thus students counselling for PBL is essential. Our team will conduct staff training and students counselling for PBL practice. We have experienced that during PBL practice staff and students come up with good projects which have potential for patent, publication or start-up, our team will identify these projects. These identified staff, students and projects then will be further trained on business modelling, patent and publication work. Same cycle will be repeated twice in one academic year. In both cycles, at every stage, Institute needs to prepare documents like notice, recordkeeping, list of projects, achievement etc. which will also prepare them for accreditation.

After first successful cycle, we will be starting training on writing joint proposals for European Union programmes.

It's essential for the institute management and teachers to take a call, where they are committed for this process. The following table can be seen as a guideline for achieving measurable outcomes listed in the last page.

IBM Logo Usage Guidelines for Marketing Materials and Websites

These Guidelines set forth the standards and requirements for use of the IBM Logo on Marketing Materials and Websites bearing the IBM Logo and the logo, trademark or trade name of another company.

Compliance with these Guidelines is required. In the event of a conflict between the terms and conditions of the Logo License Agreement and this Exhibit 2, this Exhibit 2 shall prevail.

Guidelines as to the Nature and Content of the Marketing Materials and Websites:

- 1. Use of the IBM Logo may occur only on Marketing Materials and Websites which clearly and explicitly communicate:
a. the scope and nature of the relationship between the parties;
b. the responsibilities of each of the parties.

The IBM Logo may not be used in such a way as to attribute to IBM a product or service not actually originating from IBM.

2. Marketing Materials and Websites may not contain any statements, imagery or other materials which are illegal or which may, in the sole judgment of IBM, be in bad taste or inconsistent with IBM's public image, or tend to bring disparagement, ridicule or scorn upon IBM.

3. The IBM Logo may not be placed or applied in a manner which may cause confusion as to the source or origin of the offering or communication.

4. The IBM Logo must always remain distinct and separate. The IBM Logo may not be combined with any other trademark or logo owned by another company nor may it be combined with any text, graphics, imagery or product identifiers. The IBM Logo may not be contained within the text of a sentence.

5. In a sponsorship, when used in proximity to one or more company identifiers, the IBM Logo should be placed and sized to match the visual weight and emphasis of all the other sponsors logos.

6. The use of the IBM Logo must clearly communicate the context or relationship IBM has with the company, event or offering. This may be done by the addition of "relationship text" in the headline, body copy and/or in association with the logo signatures of a communication.

7. The following trademark attribution statement shall be applied on the page on which the IBM Logo is being used or in the legal attribution segment of the Marketing Materials and Websites:

The IBM Logo is a registered trademark of IBM in the United States and other countries and is used under license. IBM responsibility is limited to IBM products and services and is governed solely by the agreements under which such products and services are provided.
