Report on Utilizing of R&D Facilities at Vishnu Institute of Pharmaceutical education and research

Collaboration between institutions offers a number of benefits including opportunities to:

- Interact with researchers having expertise in a needed area of the proposed investigation.
- Gain access to needed resources including databases, equipment, staff, and study populations.
- Gain credibility through the name recognition from prominent researchers, departments, or institutions.

In addition, many times resources found lacking at one institution can be shared with a collaborating institution and vice versa. The practice of working with teams from different institutions can offer fresh perspectives to addressing research questions and avoid the pitfalls of academic inbreeding. Insights gleaned from sharing unique research experiences can result in submitting a more comprehensive proposal.

Potential collaborators demonstrating an established record of publishing on a relevant topic can enhance both opportunities for successful proposal submissions and subsequent publications as well. Collaboration between institutions also provides a mechanism to expand one's network of research contacts, which may in time lead to further collaboration.
